"THE NEW RELIABLE"

Company: "As a public reader, she has but few equals. In fact, as a reader, she surpasses any other elocutionist I have ever heard." Col. Geo. W. Bain, the great orator and lecturer of Lexington, Ky., says of her: "She is one of the few readers I delight to hear."

The following is from The Boston (Mass.) Globe: "Mr. Leon Batchelder, flute soloist, completely captured the audience by his wonderful mastery of the instrument. He was recalled several times and was obliged to give a double encore."

The following is from Preston, Ia.: "Leon Batchelder, flute and piccolo artist, was very plainly the favorite with the audience."

The following is from The Albany (Ga.) Herald: "Miss Christine L. Giles, the assembly soloist, was at her best. This versatile artist, whose voice is as clear as a glass bell and whose versatility springs a new surprise almost daily, was heard in a number of selections. Miss Giles' 'Bright Star of Love' with violin obbligato played by herself was one of the memorable things of the assembly."
